We don't expect organic bedding and bath towels to change the world overnight, but day by day, night by night, bed by bed, it will make a difference.

And that difference might help us all sleep better.

For nearly 4,000 years, cotton was grown organically-everywhere. Then, right after WW11, that changed.

Now cotton is one of the most heavily sprayed crops worldwide.

In California, one and a quarter pounds of chemicals are used to produce a single set of conventionally-grown cotton queen-sized sheets!
